NATIONAL SCHOOL SPORT CALENDAR 2009

FOREWORD

Sport forms an integral part of the school programme, and should be offered at all schools. Schools and parents should encourage every child to participate regularly in one or more sporting activities at their school.

There is ample evidence to show that participation in physical activity has significant advantages. Besides the obvious benefits to health, it is shown that participation in sport can contribute to improved academic performance, as well as to an improved self-image and sense of general well-being. For this reason, the Department of Education, together with Sports and Recreation South Africa, views school sport as an important vehicle for the promotion of social cohesion and transformation, the development of a sense of national identity, and for encouraging healthier lifestyles for our youth. The interaction with other learners during a game or event helps to break social barriers, and builds respect for authority and the "rules of the game". We believe that if all schools were to offer a comprehensive programme of curricular and extracurricular physical activities we would see a dramatic decline in the incidences of risky behaviours, including substance abuse, sexual activities and crime. Sport channels the enormous energies of our youth in positive directions.

A well-organised and planned programme of school sport, including physical education during the school day, should facilitate the creation of safe and caring schools, and allow for quality teaching and learning to occur. The starting point is to ensure that besides the compulsory programme of physical education, every school introduces at least two sporting codes for each school term – for both boys and girls. These may be for recreational purposes, aimed at mass participation, as well as more competitive purposes, involving events with other schools. Through such activities, the key values of hard work, respect for authority, and team loyalty can be developed. To win and yet be modest; to lose but with dignity – these are some of the most important lessons of life, and they are best learnt on the sports field.

This national School Sports Calendar has been compiled to assist schools in planning their own programmes, and to ensure that teaching and learning are not disrupted by unplanned activities.

We wish you all the best for a sporting 2009, and urge you to ensure that we all play our part in building a wining nation.

GETTING STARTED

Offering Physical Education

The provision of Physical education is compulsory. It is a component of the Life Orientation curriculum which is a compulsory curricular offering for all learners in Grades R-12. Schools must offer a weekly Physical Education period as suggested in the Assessment Guidelines. This means providing 45 minutes per week for Grades 4-7 and 60 minutes per week for Grades 10-12. By exposing learners to basic motor skills, including games, loco -motor movement, rhythmic movement and fitness, they get an opportunity to identify the motor skills they are good at and develop the skills in a relatively relaxed setting. This creates in them the love for movement and the need to engage further as part of the School Sport programme offered by a school. For example, the basic soccer skills taught in a games setting with relaxed rules and a modified field and team during Physical Education can be extended into the more formal version of the code as part of the School Sport programme offered outside of contact time. Learner interest can be generated and learner participation encouraged in this way when introducing a new code at the school.

All movement activities should be developmentally appropriate for the particular age and grade group that is being targeted. This protects learners against injury and keeps them interested.

Getting all learners to play

ESTABLISHING LEAGUES

INTRA-SCHOOL LEAGUES

The most effective way in which to get all learners to participate in sport is through the establishment of intra-school leagues in the different School Sport codes. The best way to get the leagues up and running at a school is to organize the learners enrolled at the school in houses. This is done by allocating an equal number of learners to each house, making sure that each house includes the range of age groups and/or grades offered at the school. A league system is then created by getting the same age and/or grade groups from different houses in a code to play against each other in a weekly match on a Wednesday or Friday, for example. A Monday or Tuesday could be used to practice in preparation for weekly matches. Intra-school leagues are a great way to encourage mass participation and to allow learners who are not too sporty to participate in physical activity for fun and relaxation, and other health-related benefits. Points can be allocated to a house, depending on how they fare in a code and the number of learners participating, and these points can accumulate across a school term, sport season or year, with the winning house receiving the trophy

INTER-SCHOOL LEAGUES

Inter-school leagues can be established in a similar manner to that of intra-school leagues, except that in this instance the same age and/or grade groups from different schools play against each other in a code in a weekly match. Social leagues can be arranged to encourage mass participation and competitive leagues to cater for skilled athletes.

CHOOSING SCHOOL SPORT CODES

The choice of which selection of School Sport codes to offer at a school is largely dependent on the resources – human and physical – available to sustain the offering of a particular code. Teacher interest and ability to offer a School Sport code will mainly determine the codes offered, along with the facilities and equipment available at the school or in the nearby community. The lack of the correct size field should not, however, put a school off wanting to offer soccer. Soccer can be just as much fun played according to modified rules and team sizes when an even playing surface of limited space is put to good use. A school could also twin with a neighbouring school where one school offers a code, for example netball, to the learners from both schools and the other school offers another code, for example cricket, to both schools. School Sport programmes can be initiated in several schools in close proximity in this manner.

Ultimately each school should offer learners a choice of at least two School Sport codes per school term.

Indigenous Games

Many different cultural groups, each with distinctive legends, customs and beliefs, are found in contemporary South Africa. The motto of our new Coat of Arms !KE E: /XARRA //KE meaning "Unity in diversity" illustrates and justifies our being labeled the Rainbow Nation. A number of cultural groups are found in South Africa.

Each of these cultural groups has their own indigenous games that are practiced as part of part of their cultural heritage. Indigenous games include running, target, board, rope-jumping and coordination games.

Participation in indigenous games can benefit South Africans in many ways:

- It will educate people about other cultures and enhance cultural pride.
- It can offer opportunities for real communication between cultural groups, improving tolerance of other cultures.
- It provides new job opportunities and may boost international tourism.
- It preserves and revives an interest in our cultural heritage.
- It builds communities.
- It enhances a feeing of belonging to a group.
- It supplements and supports curricula in schools.
- It assists in developing social and interpersonal skills.

As September is national heritage month, the national indigenous games championships will be hosted in September 2009.

Watch the press for details.

Is your school part of the "My School Adventure"?

If not, you are losing out on being part of a dynamic and exciting initiative organised by the Departments of Education and Sport & Recreation and the FIFA LOC.

For further details on School Sport and My School Adventure, make contact with the provincial officials listed below.

The objectives of My 2010 School Adventure are:

- a) To ensure the development and implementation of an integrated education campaign aimed at informing and educating learners and teachers on all aspects of the FIFA World Cup<sup>TM</sup> as well as participating countries;
- b) To ensure that adequate opportunities are created for capacity building amongst teachers and learners through the development and implementation of football development programmes at school level and the provision of sufficient physical infrastructure; and
- c) To ensure maximum exposure to and participation of learners, teachers and communities in stimulating and educational 2010 FIFA World Cup<sup>TM</sup> activities.

Mv 2010 Dream

The South African Schools Football World Cup Competition runs from 2009 – 2010 and will mirror the format of the actual 2010 World Cup<sup>TM</sup>. During the final round of the competition, 16 schools from the rest of Africa will be invited to be part of the final 32 schools that will participate. The participating schools will assume the identities of the qualifying 32 countries. By participating in the football competition, your school stands a chance of being at the 2010 FIFA World Cup<sup>TM</sup> Finals and winning other exciting prizes. If you proceed to the National Finals, your school will be called a "Ke Nako Achiever".

Learners who enter the creative / artistic aspect of the competition stand the chance of a lifetime opportunity. Finalists will be invited to perform and/or display their work at 2010 FIFA World Cup<sup>TM</sup> Finals.
