Basic Education

These workbooks have been developed for the children of South Africa under the leadership of the Minister of Basic Education, Mrs Angie Motshekga, and the Deputy Minister of Basic Education, Mr Enver Surty.

The Rainbow Workbooks form part of the Department of Basic Education's range of interventions aimed at improving the performance of South African learners in the first six grades. As one of the priorities of the Government's Plan of Action, this project has been made possible by the generous funding of the National Treasury. This has enabled the Department to make these workbooks, in all the official languages, available at no cost.

We hope that teachers will find these workbooks useful in their everyday teaching and in ensuring that their learners cover the curriculum. We have taken care to guide the teacher through each of the activities by the inclusion of icons that indicate what it is that the learner should do.

We sincerely hope that children will enjoy working through the book as they grow and learn, and that you, the teacher, will share their pleasure.

We wish you and your learners every success in using these workbooks.

Celebrating 100 years of courageous leadership

Nelson Rolinlanla Mandela 1918-2013

"Educating all of our children must be one of our most important priorities. We all know that education, more than anything else, improves our chances of building better lives."

15 May 2008 | Message for Schools for Africa campaign Johannesburg | South Africa

Nelson Mandela was born on 18 July 1918 in the Eastern Cape in a village called Mvezo. He started school when he was 7 years old. And it was his school teacher who gave him the name Nelson. When he finished school he went to university but this was interrupted when he took part in school protests. After that he came to Johannesburg where he worked in first a mine and then in a law firm. He also went to law school but had to drop out because he couldn't afford to pay for the university fees. In 1944 he helped form the African National Congress Youth League (ANCYL) with various other people like Walter Sisulu and Anton Lambede and joined the ANC to fight against apartheid. He was jailed many times for his activities fighting for a better South Africa and in 1962 he was arrested and sentenced to 5 years in prison for leaving the country illegally and getting workers to go on strike. In 1964 he was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Rivonia trial for his role in the ANC's armed struggle. He spent over 27 years in jail. Because education was important to him he continued studying while in prison and in 1989 he received his law degree from the University of South Africa (UNISA). On February 11 1990 he was release from prison, and on 10 May 1994 he became South Africa's first black President.

Oliver Reginald Kaizana Tambo

On the 27th of October 1917, Kaizana Tambo was born in Nkantolo, Eastern Cape, then known as Pondoland. Raised with a solid foundation of hard work and respect for culture, and groomed in a village filled with strong morals and values, the "Son of Nkantolo" grew up to be loved and respected by South Africa, and the world.

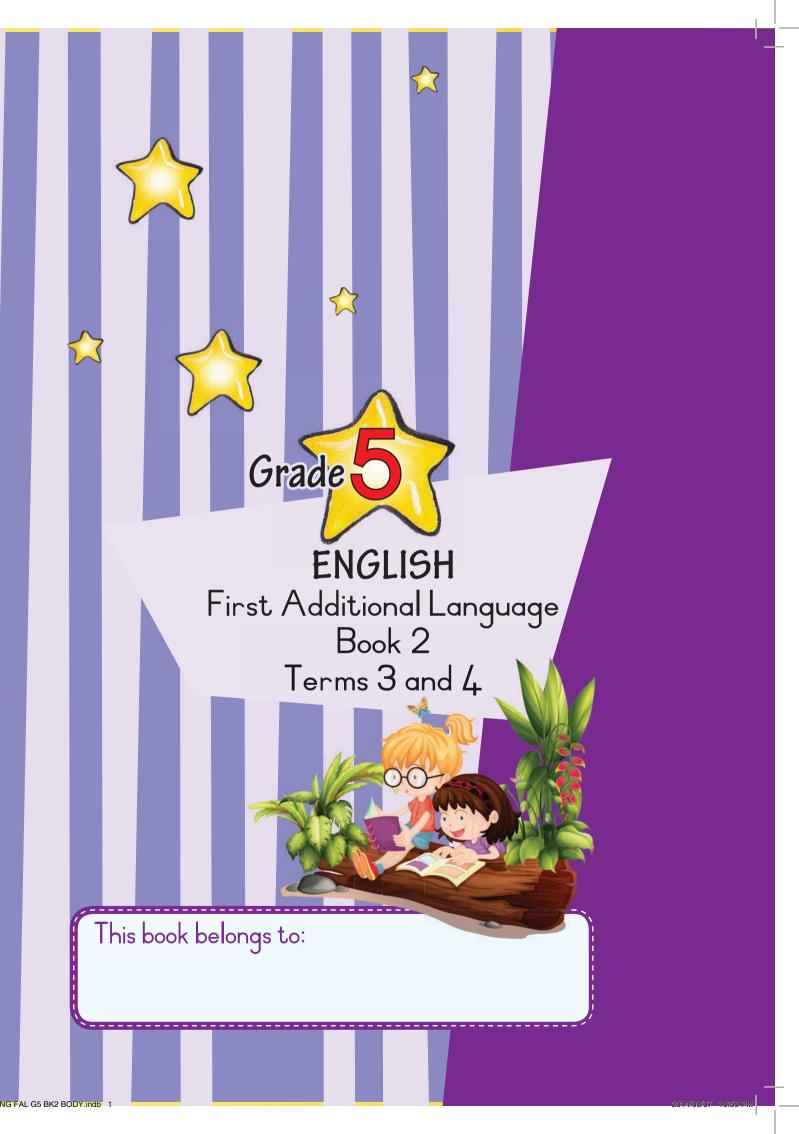

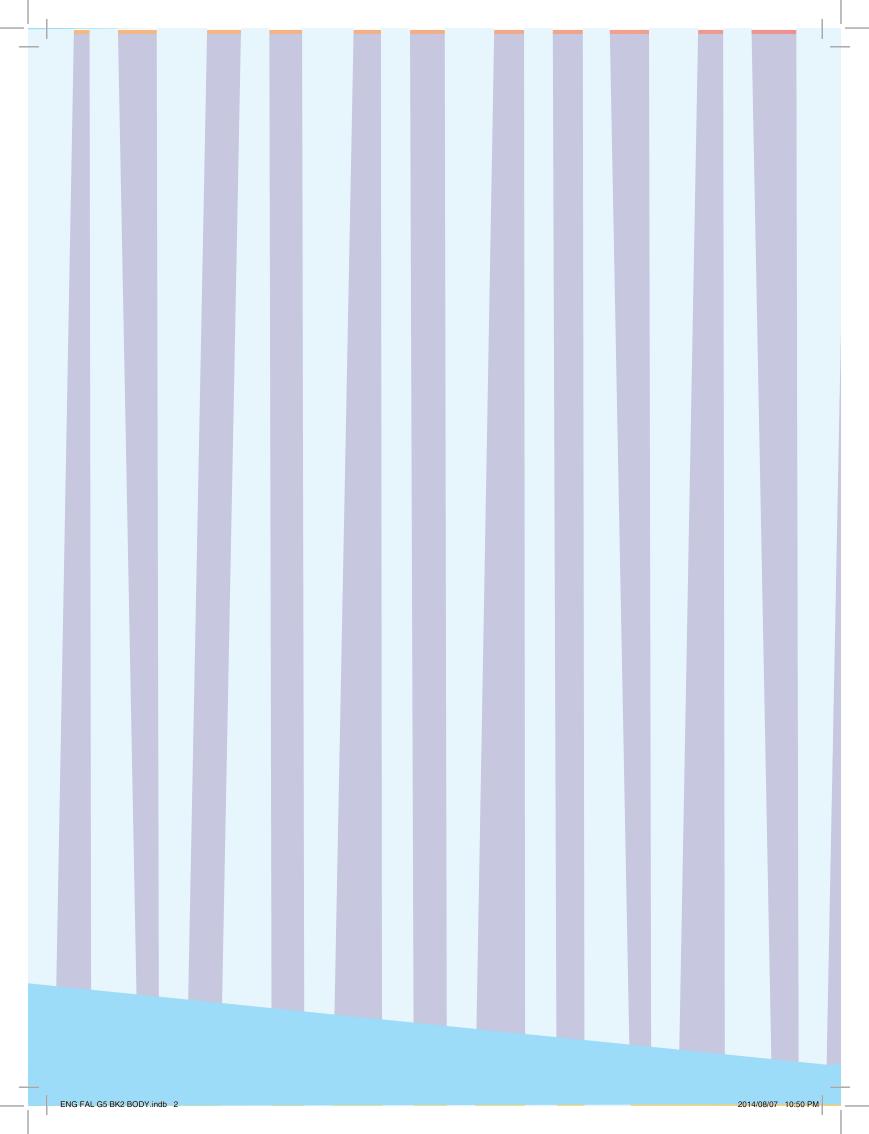

On his first day at school, Kaizana's teacher asked him to come to school with an English name. His parents chose Oliver. This, and a host of experiences with some of his teacher's strict nature, made him hate school. A meeting with a smart, young man, who was a member of the debating society in a different school. changed his attitude towards education and gave him a love for discussion and debate. He later went to Holu Cross Mission near Flagstaff, where he became one of their star students He moved on to St Peter's College, in Johannesburg, where he matriculated with top marks. Swelling with pride, the Eastern Cape Assembly of Traditional Leaders gave Oliver Tambo a bursary to study at Fort Hare University, where he graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree in Maths and Science. The following year, while studying towards his post-graduate qualification in Education, he was expelled from the University for participating in a student strike. St. Peter's College offered him a job as a Maths and Science teacher. It is while teaching in Johannesburg that he became a very active member of the African National Congress.

Oliver Tambo was a founding member and Secretary of the ANC Youth League in 1944; the general secretary of the ANC from 1952; the mandated leader of the ANC's Mission in Exile 1960; the President of the ANC from 1977 until 1990; then National Chairperson until 1993.

Oliver Tambo was a thoughtful, wise and warm-hearted leader. His simplicity, nurturing style, and genuine respect for all people, seemed to bring out the best in them. His life was remarkable for the profound influence he had on the ANC during the difficult years of struggle, sadness and uncertainty. During his almost fifty years of political activity in the ANC, Comrade O.R., as he affectionately came to be known, played a significant role in every key moment in the history of the Movement, until his death in 1993. Like Moses, he had led his people to the Promised Land, but was never able to enjoy the fruits of his toil.

The end of the story

Now let's read the end of the story. Compare what you read with the ending you wrote in the previous worksheet.

Robert and John tiptoed to the cupboard. John pulled open the door slightly and Robert shone the torch through the crack. Something was trying to push the door open. Suddenly the torch revealed two yellow eyes.

The boys began to tremble. They slammed the door shut and leaned against it. The bumping and scratching got louder.

John took a deep breath and opened the door again. A creature jumped out and streaked past them.

"What's that?" Robert shouted.

"It's your cat!" shrieked John with a laugh.

Why do you think John laughed at the end of the story?
Why do you think Robert thought there was a monster in the cupboard?

POZENS OF AFRICAN ELEPHANTS SLAUGHTERED

That headline has become all too common. Last month, poachers killed at least 86 elephants in Chad and 28 in Cameroon. Both countries have lost more than 60% of their elephants to illegal hunters in the last ten years, according to a study by the Wildlife Conservation Society. In 2012 alone, experts say, poachers killed 30 000 elephants in countries across Africa.

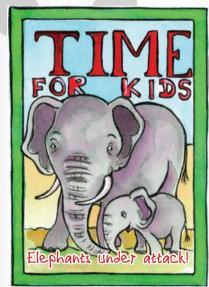

Why are so many elephants being killed? The answer lies thousands of miles away from Africa, in a handful of Asian countries. In China, business is booming in fancy shops that sell expensive statues and jewellery made of ivory.

The material comes from elephant tusks. But for many people who buy ivory, the gentle giants are not only out of sight but also out of mind. "Surveys show that seven out of ten Chinese citizens don't realise that an elephant has to die in order for people to get ivory," says Will Travers, of the Born Free Foundation. As China's economy has grown, so has the demand for ivory.

Conservationists are putting pressure on China to crack down on the sale of illegal ivory. Experts say more help is needed in Africa too. Last year, Gabon, in central Africa, set fire to its ivory stockpile. By burning millions of dollars' worth of tusks, the nation made a strong statement. "We don't want our children to inherit an empty forest," said the country's President, Ali Bongo.

With allies like Bongo, elephants just might stand a chance.

Badeef was a small, 6-month-old elephant with big floppy ears and a long trunk. He was too little to have hard, ivory tusks, but one day he would have huge ones. Young Badeef and his mother stood at the watering hole. It was surrounded by long, tender grass and wooden logs. There were a lot of older animals around the deep hole drinking the cool, refreshing water.

Little Badeef lowered his trunk and sipped until he was full. His mother started nudging him with her hard trunk. "It's time to go," she said. As usual, Badeef ran beside her as they made their way through the tall grass. "That watering hole is getting too crowded. It's not safe any longer."

Badeef had to walk fast on his short legs to keep up with his mother and the other female elephants. After several hours they stopped at an enormous baobab tree. The mother elephant reached up with her long trunk and ripped off the tender leaves and soft branches. She handed some to Badeef and then ate the rest.

Good enough to eat

October 26, 2012 by Suzanne Zimbler

Some scientists say we should use insects to help feed the world's growing population. Would you give bugs a try?

Does a crunchy grasshopper sandwich sound yummy? If you live in certain parts of the world – say, Mexico or Thailand or Kenya, or even South Africa – the idea of biting into insects might not seem strange to you at all. For thousands of years, insect-eating has been common practice among many of the world's people. According to bugeaters around the globe, insects are tasty. "When they are roasted, I find termites really delicious," says Arnold van Huis.

Van Huis is a bug scientist. He is also an expert on bug-eating. He has travelled the world to learn how different groups of people gather insects and prepare them as food. It was in Kenya that Van Huis tried the termites. In Zimbabwe, he had "nicely seasoned" locusts.

Bug fans say insects are not only tasty, they are also nutritious. Many are packed with protein, vitamins and minerals.

Meat of the future?

According to the United Nations, the planet's population is now almost 7 billion. Cattle need large areas of farmland, and feeding the animals can be expensive. "We have to find alternatives to meat," Van Huis says. "One very good option is using insects."

Raising insects, which are able to live in crowded quarters, would require less land. Bugs would also be cheaper to feed, since they could eat food scraps, such as potato peels. "We throw away one-third of our food," he says. "Insects could grow on that."

Not only could bugs eat our scraps, but they would also require much less food – and water – than animals. Insects also use most of what they eat to grow.

Crunch Time

For insect-eating to become mainstream, Van Huis says people must have a chance to sample tasty, ready-to-eat bugs. There are more than 1 700 types of bugs that are safe to eat. But do not even think of snacking on bugs from your backyard, since there is no way of knowing if they are dangerous! Van Huis is working with chefs in the Netherlands to develop tasty bug recipes. For one experiment, his team prepared two types of meatballs: some made with plain meat and others made with mealworms and meat combined. In a blind taste test, nine out of Read the magazine article again and Write down the reasons for eating insects – from what you think are the least important to the most important reasons.

Look at the cover of the magazine. Do you think the picture makes the meal of bugs look tasty? In your answer, talk about the colours of the picture and the way the food is shown.

Do you think the title Bug Bites is a good one? Say why.

Would you prefer to eat a Bug Mac or a Big Mac? Say why.

Homework, I love you. I think that you're great. It's wonderful fun when you keep me up late. I think you're the best when I'm totally stressed, preparing and cramming all night for a test.

Homework, I love you. I tell you, it's true. There's nothing more fun or exciting to do. You're never a chore, for it's you I adore. I wish that our teacher would hand you out more.

I am a fifth grade student in Cape Town. I would like to share with you my experience of being in the fifth grade. Is there any fourth grade learner who wants to know how to be able to pass the fifth grade? Well, you should read this. If you don't read this, you might

To begin with you need to decide what subjects are the most even fail the fifth grade. important. When I spoke to the 80 Grade 5 learners in my school, I found out that 72 of them felt that English and Science were the most important subjects; 56 felt that Social Science was important; 38 felt Maths was important and 28 felt that Life Skills was important. The reasons they gave were the following.

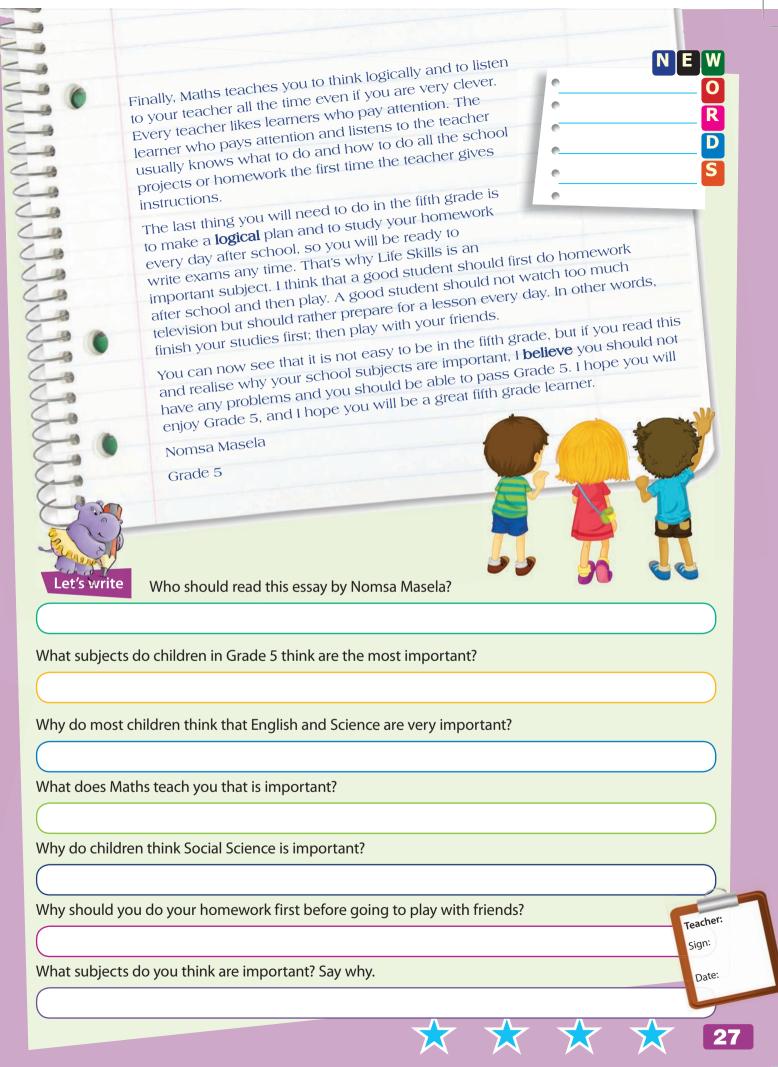

To begin with, before you can pass Grade 5, you have to learn all aspects of communicating properly. This means you should be able to be a fluent reader, you should be able to spell well, and you should, above all, be a good writer. Writing is important because if you write well, you can express your ideas clearly. This will help you when you work on school projects. Also, there are many writing tests in Grade 5 so if you want a good mark in English you have to practise your writing.

Next, Science teaches you about the world around you and how to find solutions to problems. It also teaches you how to be organised. If you are organised, you are able to work clearly, neatly and thoughtfully.

Another important thing you need to know in the fifth grade is all about your country, your culture, and how things work economically. This is why Social Science is important.

Cell phones

Give your friend clear directions on how to text someone using a cell phone.

Be clear and use words such as "first", "then" and "next". Make sure that your instructions are logical.

Should children have access to the internet?

Zandile says that all her friends have a cell phone, but Zandile's mom doesn't want to buy her one. She doesn't want Zandile to play video games either. What is more, the Internet scares her. Zandile's mom says, "If Zandile has a cell phone, how do we know who she is talking to? Video games are bad for you. The Internet is dangerous. It's like having a gun in the house. We should just ban her from using the computer, and I'm not buying her a cell phone until she is eighteen. This is the only way we can be sure that Zandile is safe."

Zandile's dad disagrees. Although he agrees that there are some dangers to it, he likes the Internet, and finds it very useful. "The trouble is," he says, "we can't stop Zandile from using the Internet, as this would put her at a disadvantage. What is more, I like video games. I think that, when played in moderation, they are fun. Obviously, it is not good to play them without self-control. Finally, I think Zandile needs a cell phone. We can't take these things away."

Tick the right answers.

Which of the following best describes the difference between Zandile's mom and Zandile's dad?

- Zandile's mom wants to ban her from using the computer, while her dad likes to play video games.
- Her mom thinks technology is dangerous, while her dad thinks it can be useful. В
- C Her mom does not care about her future, but her dad is very supportive.
- D Her mom is very strict while her dad is not that strict.

Which of the following best describes how her mom and dad are similar?

- Α Both her parents like technology.
- В Both parents think video games are bad.
- C Both think the Internet is dangerous.
- Both her mom and dad care about her.

In paragraph 1, Zandile's mom says, "It's like having a gun in the house." She says this in order to
Α	A support the idea that the Internet is dangerous
В	reject the idea that guns can be safe if used responsibly
C	encourage Zandile's dad to buy a gun
D	explain why one can't control the internet

In paragraph 2, her dad says he thinks Zandile needs a cell phone. You know what her mother thinks. What is the best reason her dad can give to convince her mom that Zandile needs a cell phone?

A Zandile can use her cell phone to talk to her friends, instead of borrowing one of ours.

B A cell phone will teach Zandile how to use new technology.

C Because all of her friends have a cell phone, Zandile should also have one.

D If Zandile is in trouble she can use her cell phone to call for help.

In paragraph 2, Zandile's dad says, "We can't stop Zandile from using the Internet, as this would put her at a disadvantage." What does he mean by this?

A Zandile needs to learn how to use the Internet if she wants to have friends.

B Zandile should not stop using the Internet because this could slow her learning.

C If a person's ability to use the Internet becomes important in the future, Zandile will be at a disadvantage.

D If Zandile does not learn to use the Internet, then she will never know why it can be dangerous.

Which of the following do you think her dad would disapprove of? A On Saturday, Zandile plays video games all evening. The next day, she wakes up early and goes for a walk. She talks to her friend about what she is going to wear to the party. B Zandile plays video games for an hour or two. Then she eats lunch and meets her friends at the book shop. That night, she and her friends go to a film. C Zandile plays video games all morning. When her friends ask her to play outside, she tells them that she is too busy and continues to play. D Zandile plays video games for an hour every day for five days but on these days, she does not watch any TV.

about technology?
A Read her a newspaper article that talks about the importance of technology.
B Provide her with a manual showing how the latest cell phone functions.
C Take her to the library and show her the five most popular internet websites.
D Spend the weekend playing video games with her.

Which of the following would be the best way for Zandile to change the way her mom thinks

Put these instructions on 'sending a message' in the right order. Number your instructions from 1 - 10.

After selecting the message, receiver's name or number, press "send" to send the message. Wait to make sure that the message has been sent.

Decide what you want to text and to whom. Make sure that your message is polite.

To send your completed message, go to "Options" and select "Send".

Add a space after you finish a word. This is usually done by pressing the space bar. You can then begin typing a new word.

Select the "Create New Message" option. You should now have a blank text on your screen. Begin typing your message on the keypad.

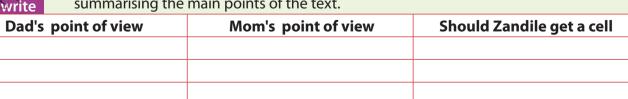

You can either enter the receiver's number OR find "Phonebook" and choose the receiver's name or number.

Add punctuation marks. Different phones use different keys for punctuation marks.

Most phones have predictive text, which means that before you finish typing the word you are shown what the word could be.

In menu, select the "Messages" or "SMS" (which stands for "short messaging service") icon. The labelling may be different for different phones.

Re-read the text about Zandile and then make a mind map summarising the main points of the text.

Mine is the red one. The one on the table is yours.

Don't confuse the possessive pronoun its with the contraction it's (it is).

Its colours have faded. (possessive pronoun)

It's beginning to fade. (contraction)

Choose the correct word from the words in brackets and underline it.

Please see if (you're, your) painting is dry.

(It's, Its) too early to go to the show.

(They're, Their) latest record is selling well.

Underline the sentences that are universal truths. Then, at the bottom, write a sentence saying why they are universal truths.

The sun rises in the east.

My dog is the prettiest dog in the world.

The earth moves on its own axis.

The twins are very pretty.

The North and South Poles are covered in ice.

A universal truth is true no matter where you are and who says it. It is a fact that is permanent and does not change.

Term 3 - Weeks 5 - 6

Saving our trees

South Africa wants to plant more than one million trees throughout the country every year. The project is part of a United Nations programme to encourage the planting of trees that are right for the local environment. The sentences below are the beginning of a story about someone who supported this programme.

I am 11 years old. I decided to have a tree-planting ceremony at my school for my birthday. Instead of the usual gifts, I asked each of my friends to bring a sapling, a spade and some compost...

Work in your groups, and make up the rest of the story. Make sure that, after these beginning sentences, it has a middle and an end.

Now read this story.

The old lady told them to call her Ambi. She looked so small and alone as she led them across the bare, windy hillside down a stony track. At last they reached a hollow and in it stood one enormous old tree. Ambi beckoned them close to it and leaned her back against the trunk. She shut her eyes.

"Now," she said, "I have a story to tell you. This tree is the very last tree of all our forests. When I was a girl, all these hills were covered in green forests and the fields were full of different crops. My village, which was called Himandal, was a lovely place. It was in the forest and was the home of many families. All that you see now was trees and green fields."

Wilen looked around, shocked. Millions of trees must once have covered these sad yellow hills. How many monkeys and elephants, birds and deer had lived here? A forest was like a whole world. Until this moment, Wilen hadn't understood that a whole world could disappear so entirely.

"Will our village also look like this one day?" He shivered to think of it.

Denngu, his uncle, stood between the tree's great roots, his face pinched and pale and stared at the hills as bare as stone, as if it hurt him to look.

Ambi went on, "The forest gave us wood to build, medicines to heal and food to eat. It brought rain to fill our rivers and to water our crops. But little by little, we cut it down to grow more crops, to mine for coal, to make money."

Ambi touched Denngu's arm and looked into his sad, miserable face. "Your father, Jenak," she told him, "he warned us. The coal will run out, he said. The soil will lose it goodness and no rain will come. He warned us and warned us. But he was only young and no one listened. And one day, all the forest was gone. The coal did run out, the soil did die, the rains did fail. Just as he said. People had to leave or starve. And now there is nothing. Nothing and nobody. Just me and the old tree, as old as these hills, waiting to die."

Ambi stood away from the tree. "That's all I have to say. Now go home."

The bus drove on through the night. Wilen knew now that he must try to win the fight that his grandpa had lost so long ago.

As they got off the bus the next morning, Wilen pulled out the paper money that had been burning in his pocket ever since Denngu had given it to him.

"I love you, but we can't do this to the land. Keep your money. I can't and won't take it!" By Nicola Davies

Term 3 - Weeks 5 - 6

Starting the writing process

Nicola Davies uses a comparison – a simile – when she says: "A forest was like a whole world".

Simile:

When you use a simile, you compare one thing with another for example:

She is

She is as slippery as an eel. Her eyes are like diamonds.

What two things are being compared?

What are the similarities between a forest and the world?

Do you think the comparison is a good one? Say why.

The writer uses two more similes in her story:

Simile	What is being compared?	Is the comparison a good one? Say why.
stared at the hills as bare as stone me and the old tree, as old as these hills

Rewrite these sentences in reported speech:

Ambi said, "Then one day the forest was gone. People had to leave or starve."

Wilen said, "I love you, but I can't do this to the land. I can't and won't take your money!"

With direct speech we use the exact words that someone says. We can either do this by using inverted commas to show the exact words that are said or, in a play, by using colons to show when someone is speaking. For example:

Zondi: I'll call them tomorrow.

Zondi said, "I'll call them tomorrow."

With indirect or reported speech we tell someone what the person has said.

For example: Zondi said that she would call them the next day.

Can you see what changes when you change direct into indirect speech?

You take away the quotation marks or colon. You usually use the word that.

The verb changes. For example, the present becomes the past.

The pronouns change. For example, my becomes her; I becomes he or she etc.)

What is the one thing he would ask people to do for him if he could speak?

The dog says he can't be taught new tricks. What does the idiom "You cannot teach an old dog new tricks" mean? Choose the best meaning from the following:

It is difficult to make someone change the way they do something when they have been doing it the same way for a long time.

Old people can't be taught new things.

People think the way they do things is always the best way.

minutes to four.

CINDY: Oooh! It's almost twenty minutes to four now! MRS. SILO: Indeed, I know it is! POTATO FACE: Hey, Jimmy! Take a look out of the window! See if you can see Joe and Annie coming! JIMMY: Okay! MRS. SILO: Now you children can all hide in the lounge, and when Annie and Joe come inside, you can come running out and shout, "Surprise!" NOGA: All right, Mrs. Silo. Hey, get ready everybody! Here they come! JIMMY: Why have all the children come to Mr and Mrs Silo's house? Why do you think Mike Gool didn't want to come to the house? Why do you think Annie is called "Orphan Annie"? When your mom makes cheese and tomato sandwiches for your friends, she needs to know how many friends want sandwiches. This will tell her how many slices of bread to cut, how much butter to use, how many tomatoes to pick, and how much cheese to buy. In the same way, the census counts all the people in the country so that government can work out how many programmes and services are needed and where they are needed. Government will use the census numbers to decide how to spend money for hospitals, schools, housing, roads, water, electricity, playgrounds and lots of other things. Businesses will use the census to decide where to build new shops.

Census workers are called enumerators. They help you fill in a special form. All people are counted. It doesn't matter where they live, how old they are, what language they speak and whether they are citizens or not. The information that comes out of the census can help make the place where you live a better place.

It is important to be counted in a census. If you aren't, the place where you stay may not get money from government to build things your community needs.

Description of the life cycle of a plant

When the seed is fully grown it is released. When the plant has grown big enough it develops a flower. The seed begins to grow under the ground. Then the old plant fades and dies. But the new seed settles on the ground and, in time, begins to grow, so beginning the same cycle again. After a while the flower is fertilised by pollen from another flower of the same kind. Then the young plant pushes above the ground and grows bigger.

What food do you like best? Do you cook at home? If you do, tell your group what you cook, the ingredients you use, and how to cook it.
Use words like "first", "then", "next", and "finally".

Lots of children want to know which foods to eat to be healthy, so let's learn the difference between Go, Slow, and Whoa foods.

Foods can be classified into three groups: Go, Slow, and Whoa.

Go foods

These are foods like fruit, vegetables, meat, chicken and fish that are good to eat almost any time. They are the healthiest foods.

Slow foods

These are "sometimes foods" such as waffles and pancake. They aren't banned, but they shouldn't be eaten every day. At most, eat them once or twice a week.

Whoa foods

These foods should make you say exactly that — Whoa! Should I eat that? Whoa foods are the least healthy and the most likely to cause weight and health problems, especially if a person eats them all the time. That's why Whoa foods, such as chips, are "once-in-a-while" foods.

hat same night, the skipper of the ship crept into the man's house to steal the mill. He tucked the hand-mill under his arm and quickly left. Once on board his ship, he took the mill out. "Grind salt, and grind both quickly and well," said the skipper.

So the mill began to grind salt, until it spouted out like water. When the skipper had filled the ship, he wanted to stop the mill, but no matter what he did, it went on grinding.

The heap of salt grew higher and higher, until at last the ship sank like a stone to the bottom of the ocean.

And to this day, the mill remains at the bottom of the sea and grinds on. If anyone ever asks, that is why the sea is salty.

The snow was knee-deep and the wind howled and whistled and he and his wife were starving. So he went to his brother and begged him to give him something for Christmas Day. It was not the first time that the poor brother had asked his brother for a favour. The rich, stingy brother was tired of being asked to help out, so he devised a plan.

"If you will do as I ask, you shall have a whole ham. You must spend a night in the Haunted Cave," he told his poor brother. Thomas, the poor one, thanked him and agreed, since he had no other options.

"Well, I will do what I have promised," said the poor brother, and he took the ham and set off. He went on and on all day, and at night time he came to a place where there was a bright light.

"This must be the place," he thought.

You have been asked to talk about two people: someone who is kind and gentle and someone who is mean and nasty. Make notes for your speech in the space below.

The story of the rich man and the poor man continues.

"Oh! Yes, you are already there," said the old woodcutter. "When you get inside, the little people will all want to buy your ham, for they don't get much meat to eat there. But you must not sell it unless you can get the hand-mill, which stands behind the door. When you come out again, I will teach you how to use the hand-mill properly; it is useful for almost everything."

So Thomas thanked the old man for his good advice and knocked at the door. When he got in, everything happened just as predicted. People came around him like ants on an anthill and tried to outbid each other for the ham.

"I really shouldn't sell it," said the man. "But, if I do decide to sell it, I would like to have the hand-mill that is standing there behind the door."

At first they said no, but eventually they gave in and traded the hand-mill for the ham.

When Thomas came out again into the yard, he asked the old woodcutter about the hand-mill and how to use the hand-mill.

"It is a wonderful mill. It will grind anything in the world that you wish for. I will show you how to use it. The mill will grind anything you want. But when you want the mill to stop, you must say 'Halt, halt, little mill', and the mill will obey you."

When the poor man had learned how to use the mill he headed home. He got there just as Christmas Day arrived.

The story ends

The rich brother knew about the mill grinder and had heard his brother tell the mill to grind things for him. The rich brother wanted the mill more than anything else in the world. He wanted it to make salt – something that everybody wanted and that would make him a lot of money. One evening, he crept into his brother's house and stole the grinder.

He took the mill onto his ship and started sailing. If he could get the mill to make enough salt to sell to everybody throughout the world, he would be the richest man in the whole world.

When they were out at sea, the brother said,

"Grind, quickly grind, little mill, Grind salt – with a right good will!"

And the mill ground salt, and more salt, and still more salt. When he had filled his hundred thousand sacks, the brother cried, "Now you must stop, little mill".

But the little mill did not stop. The brother did not know the right words. The mill kept on grinding salt, and more salt, and still more salt. Soon there was so much salt that the ship sank. But the mill kept on grinding. And that is why the sea is so salty.

CHILDREN TAKE THE LEAD ON LEARNING

By Michelle Minster

Children in Hillbrow are taking charge of their own learning.
And they're having lots of fun too.

A small room behind a building in Hillbrow is buzzing with activity. Around two large tables children laugh and talk as they draw and colour in slogans: "People shall share", "Stop the War", "I love all but I don't trust anyone", "I'm the happiest girl in the world". In the corner sits Tsela Maako, who teaches the group.

She is explaining to two children how to use a machine to make badges for their slogans.

These are just a few of the kids who attend this resource centre after school. Tsela explains why she started the centre.

"I like working with children. I saw many kids walking around after school doing nothing. So I decided to collect them together where they would be safe and I could do fun things with them."

At the centre

"I come twice a week," says Nomfundo. "I've been coming here for three years. I come because I want to learn new things and I don't want to get involved with gangsters in the streets."

Ivy smiles when she talks about what they do in the afternoons. "We learn dancing, music, drama and art." The children teach themselves dancing and a teacher from the art school comes to teach them art.

Along the walls of this busy room is a miniature city made out of beautiful cardboard houses. The children made them all themselves.

The gardeners

Mawetu loves gardening. He spends much of his time looking after the little plots the centre uses. A gardening group taught the children how to grow things in the poor soil.

"What I like best about our group is that you learn how to plant trees, flowers and vegetables. Then you sell the vegetables and flowers for money." In Tsela's garden there is a crop of potatoes. "The children just planted the potatoes without telling me." Now the neighbours come up to her and say, "Don't the children want to work in our gardens?"

What the children are learning

Some of the children went to workshops on storytelling, toy-making, organising and running meetings, and fund-raising. All the children raise funds and then decide what they are going to do with the money they raise.

"The children tell me what they want to do," Tsela says, with a smile. "The whole point is about children helping and looking after each other."

A slogan may be a phrase or a sentence, but it is a special kind of phrase or sentence. A slogan is always short and easy to remember, and it is supposed to let other people know what you think about something, or to persuade them to think the same as you, or to persuade them to buy something.

Look at these headlines. Each one is for an article about an activity – the kind that the children at the Hillbrow centre might also enjoy.

NEWS THREAD - a magazine for kids

DESIGNER

creates her own fashion for kids By Mindy Mondy

At age 11, I didn't know whether I wanted to be a ballerina, a vet or an astronaut. Not so 11-year-old Thami Mabena. At her young age, Thami is already receiving a lot of interest in her brightly-coloured and adorable designs for young girls.

Her parents say she became fascinated with fashion design and designers – particularly David Tlale – at a very early age.

At age 7, she wrote a letter to her idol for a class project (most of the other children wrote to Santa) where she said, "I notice you do not have a kids' line."

Thami has stepped in to provide fashionable clothes for kids. Her designs are energetic, have vibrant colours and strong prints. Her dresses have flounced skirts, giant bows, sparkle - all pretty and eye-catching detail that appears to appeal to Thami herself. She definitely wears

An outfit fit for a princess

her own cute designs, topped off with flower headbands and the finishing touch of bright pink nail polish. On top of all this, she sews her clothes herself!

Thami's excitement and enthusiasm are inspiring to any dress designer. I just hope so much early attention doesn't dim her passion for fashion. It's amazing to think she's only 11 years old. It should be so much fun to see what she does in the future.

Do you have a passion for fashion and designing clothes? Or what are your interests?

Daily News, Johannesburg, Friday 21 November

HAPPY DAYS: Children from Lakeview Primary School will be joining in the fun of Christmas Children's Theatre after all. A businessman has become a hero after coming to the rescue of hundreds of pupils who were going to miss out on their Christmas treat.

Every year, Lakeview Community Primary School's 420 pupils have travelled by bus for a special trip to see the Christmas show at City Playhouse. But this year, due to rising costs, the school could not afford to go to the theatre. The disappointed children were to miss out on their annual treat until Mike Buck, chairman of the local estate agents' association, decided to step in.

After hearing about their plight, he offered to pay for the buses and the theatre tickets for the children. The 420 children went to the theatre to see a performance of Pippi Longstocking on 12 December.

The tradition of taking the children to see the Christmas show was started by the school's principal, Simon Smith. He said: "We've been going to the theatre at Christmas time for nine or ten years. I was really upset when we had to cancel something that we all love doing. With rising petrol costs the school simply could not afford it. Nor could our parents. It's absolutely magnificent that Mike is sponsoring us."

The lion's roar

Look at the picture and talk to your friend about it. Imagine that the lion is telling the animals a story. Tell your group the story. Make sure your story has a clear beginning, middle and end, that you describe the characters, and that you say where the story takes place.

Once there was a lion without a roar. The lion had always been this way; he had never been able to roar. But the other animals did not know this. From an early age he realised he could not roar. He had learnt to talk softly to everyone, and to listen to them. He learned to convince others of his point of view without having to raise his voice. This won him the affection and trust of all the other animals.

But one day the lion spoke to a pig who was so stupid and stubborn that the lion could not find a way to make the pig understand. He felt a strong urge to roar at the pig, but the fact that he could not made him feel weak. He wanted to solve this problem, so he spent a few months inventing a roaring machine which he could use whenever he needed it. A short while after completing the roaring machine, the stupid, stubborn pig turned up. He annoyed the lion so much that the lion used the machine. It sent out a truly terrifying roar.

"GRRRRRRRRROAUUUUUUURRRR!!!"

Not only did this give the pig a terrible fright, but it also shocked all the other animals. They were so frightened that for months none of them dared to come out of their homes. The lion became sad and lonely. He realised that he didn't need to roar in order to get others to pay attention to him. Without knowing it, his lack of a roar had made him good at talking and listening to others and convincing them.

So, little by little, by using a kind, pleasant tone of voice, he managed to restore the animals' trust in him. Never did he consider using his roaring machine again.

 Compare your predictions with what you read. ● If you don't understand a section read it again slowly. Read it aloud.

Term 4 - Weeks 5 - 6 114-Lessons we can learn

The lion learnt an important lesson. It is better to talk to people than to shout at people. Brainstorm ideas by completing the mind map to show why it is important to talk to people rather than shout at them.

Write two paragraphs about what happened when you shouted at somebody because you lost your temper. Use your mind map to help you.

In the first paragraph say why you shouted at someone.

In the second paragraph say what happened and how the person reacted when you shouted.

Write a draft of your paragraphs in your exercise book. Ask a friend to help you edit them. Once you have corrected the paragraphs, write the final draft below.

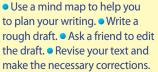

• Then write it neatly in your book.

106

Complete this table. Make plural words from the singular words.

Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
lion		machine
animal		problem
pig

What did you do to make the words plural?

Underline the adverbs of time in the paragraph below, and then use three of the adverbs in sentences of your own.

Let's write

Adverbs of time tell us when an action happened. e.g. tomorrow, yesterday The lion met the animals yesterday to listen to their problems. He had appointments to see them today and tomorrow. However, they also wanted an appointment now and then another appointment at night.

Rewrite the sentences using the adverb of frequency correctly.

Adverbs of frequency tell how often something happens or is done. e.g. often, usually

The lion listens to the animals. (often)

They take his advice. (sometimes)

The lion roars. (never)

The animals are friendly. (usually)

They have discussions in the evening. (never)

Term 4 - Weeks 5 - 6 115 An interesting atlas

Look at the book covers and talk to your friend about them.

- What books do you enjoy reading?
- Do you buy books or do you borrow books from your local library?
- Does your school have a library?
- If it doesn't have a library, do you think it should have one? Say why.

Atlases for everyone

If you buy only two books while you are at school, the Shosholoza World Atlas should be one.

The first few pages of the atlas give you information that explains the world. There is information about space, the seasons, the reasons for day and night – just what you need when your memory gets a bit rusty!

There is a summary of South African history, from the earliest time right up to the present. There are also maps on climate, environmental problems, and many other topics.

What makes the Shosholoza World Atlas different is that two thirds of the atlas is about Africa. This is great if you are interested in Africa. It's a problem if you want to find out about other parts of the world. There is only one page each on Europe, Asia, the Americas and Australia.

The Shosholoza World Atlas is a bargain at R150,00.

The section on environmental issues provides interesting information and uses pictures and maps to do so.

It covers problems like the ozone layer, acid rain and threatened animal species. There is also more cheerful information about alternative energy.

I have only one problem with this book. It does not give much information about any one topic. But it is very useful for school libraries. It can also be used for project work, speeches and group activities.

environmental	to do with our surroundings	green	the world	earth

alternative	substitute	unusual	replacement	change

Read the book review again and then write answers to these questions.

What topics do you think the atlas covers? What continent does it focus on?

What do the first few pages of the atlas contain?

The reviewer includes the statement that there is more cheerful information about alternative energy. What do you think most of the information covers?

What does the reviewer feel is a problem about the atlas?

What topics does the Shosholoza World Atlas cover?

If you were asked to do a project on the Industrial Revolution, would this atlas be useful? Give reasons for your answer.

In what way will the atlas help you "when your memory gets a bit rusty"?

You are told that if you buy only two books while you are at school, the atlas should be one of them. What other book would you buy? Say why.

Term 4 - Weeks 5 - 6
Let's make music

Do you play a musical instrument? Tell the class about it: why you chose it, how long you practise for, and where you have classes. If you don't play an instrument, would you like to? If so, what instrument would you like to play, and why? Have you ever been to a concert? Tell the class about it.

Tami wanted to play in the orchestra at the community centre, but she was nervous. She thought the music would be too difficult. The first day she was so nervous she could hardly tune the strings of her musical instrument. The only orchestra she had ever played in was the one at school. After a few rehearsals she was comfortably playing along with everyone else. She realised that there was no reason to be nervous and she began to enjoy herself.

At rehearsals, Tami became friendly with Vusi, who sat next to her. Vusi was always helpful. Tami was not embarrassed to ask him questions about music. Vusi's parents were musicians. They had started teaching Vusi music when he was only five years old. Tami couldn't imagine playing the violin at that age. Vusi told her that many famous musicians started playing when they were very young.

Another orchestra member who became a friend of Tami's was Marie. Marie played the clarinet. After rehearsal Marie would tell her funny stories. Marie said that when she played her clarinet at home as a child, it squeaked so much that she got the nickname Squeaky. That was a long time ago. Now Marie had a beautiful tone on the clarinet. Sometimes, just to make Tami laugh, Marie made her clarinet squeak. Even though Marie was older than Tami, the two became very good friends.

The orchestra was rehearsing music for the spring concert. Tami liked all the composers but Mozart was her favourite. Some of her friends at school didn't understand why she liked Mozart. They promised to come to the spring concert anyway. Tami looked forward to the event and hoped that it would not rain the night of the concert.

On the night of the spring concert, Tami was very excited. She had never played for such a large audience before. Both Vusi and Marie told her that she would have a lot of fun. The conductor, who usually seemed so calm, appeared to be nervous. Tami was quite surprised because he had been to big cities all over the world for at least forty years. After the concert was over, the conductor seemed pleased. He praised the members of the orchestra for their fine performance.

- It sprinkled, first so lightly, it could easily be mist.
   A tornado then came dancing by, it swung and did the twist.

Autumn's chores

Summer's getting drowsy now; Soon she will be dozing; Flowers are folding up their heads, Another season's closing.

Autumn's waiting in the wings, Impatient to get going, He has a lot of work to do, Before it's time for snowing.

"I have to paint the leaves," he says,
"In shades of red and gold,
And send the birds along their way
Before it gets too cold

Sunshiny days will be shorter now; I'll add a cool, crisp breeze; For this relief from summer heat, I make no apologies.

I have just one more thing to do; My work is almost done; I'll turn the leaves to crunchy piles, So kids can have autumn fun!"

Joanna Fuchs

Read the poem 'Autumn chores' again and then answer these questions.

What season of the year is the poem about? Tick the answer.			1
Spring		Autumn	Age .
Summer		Winter

Write down two lines from the poem that support your answer.

What is going to happen to summer?

What do you think the phrase "waiting in the wings" means?

What colours do leaves turn before they fall off trees?

What will autumn do to the leaves to make it fun for children?

What is a "chore"? Do you have chores to do?

Read the poem "Autumn's chores" out loud with your partner.

- Did you notice that some words rhyme?
  In which lines do you find the rhyming words?

A verse is a group of lines in a poem. Some poems have one verse, some poems have many verses. The poem "Autumn's chores" has five verses.

Now beat out the first verse of the poem. The beat of a poem is called the metre. We show the metre by using stressed (/) and unstressed syllables (*). We have done the first line for you. Study it, then show the metre of all the other lines.

- Do you think it is important to keep the place where you live clean? Say why.

Spring is in the air and while people enjoy the sunshine, Plastics SA is encouraging the public to start their annual spring-cleaning by looking at their environment first.

"We are calling on all South Africans to help keep our country beautiful during September," says Douw Steyn, Environmental Director of Plastics SA. Local communities, schools and groups throughout South Africa are encouraged to plan and host their own clean-up and recycling activities during Clean-Up South Africa Week, which will take place from 12 to 17 September.

Clean Up South Africa Week (12 to 17 Sept)

According to Steyn, the aim of Clean-Up South Africa Week is for everyone to make a difference by keeping South Africa clean and litter free. "The Clean-Up South Africa Week shows the importance of individual efforts. Each South African has a responsibility to help rid our country of litter and to recycle waste. Every piece of paper you pick up and every plastic wrapper you throw into the recycling bin makes a huge collective difference," Steyn says.

What do you do when people throw litter on the streets?

The leaky tap drips day and night Just fix it right or shut it tight. It seems the earth with water abounds But really it's every drop that counts. The tap is on, you brush your teeth The water flows, you soap your feet.

Just think of all the water lost. To close the tap, what does it cost? The water bottle you take to school The water in it is nice and cool. You drink a bit, the rest you throw, The water could help a plant to grow.

Read the poster.
The poster says that you need to pick up your own rubbish.

Now make your own poster for your school or community building, in which you encourage everyone not to litter.

Make people aware of your school's playground. Is there litter? What kind of litter is there? Does someone take the litter away? Who takes it away?

Ask people to do something about the litter.

You could use one of these phrases: Put the litter in a rubbish bin! Don't leave other children's litter on the ground! If there is no dustbin, put your litter in a bag! Don't throw litter out of a taxi!

It's not someone else's responsibility to pick up our litter.

IT'S OUR RESPONSIBILITY

Please! Put your litter in the bin.

Soccer in South Africa by Brad Morgan

Soccer is the most widely played sport in South Africa. For many South Africans, the country's proudest sporting moment came when we won the African Nations Cup on home turf in 1996.

Soccer is intensely followed, and the quality of the local game keeps improving – as shown by the increasing number of South African players playing for glamorous European clubs.

Local teams are followed with passion by whistling and cheering fans.

There's probably no quicker way to break the ice with the South African on the street than to show some knowledge of local soccer.

In 1992, two years before the country's first democratic election, the united South African team was formed and played Cameroon in its first match in Durban on the 9th of July. It was a triumphant occasion for the team, as they beat the West African powerhouse by one goal to nil.

When South Africa hosted the 1996 African Nations Cup, they proved they belonged in the finals by defeating Tunisia 2–0 in the final. It was during the team's run to the title that its nickname, "Bafana Bafana", became known around the world.
