QUESTION 2

2.1 Read the extract below and answer the questions which follow.

Service excellence – some points to ponder

Good service is what makes a great holiday experience and service to customers can be learned. Granted, it takes a real interest in people and a will to be of service, but there are some skills that can be acquired by even the newest member of staff who can make all the difference. All staff dealing with clients should receive training in such skills. If you want your company to be renowned for its high standards, everyone, from cleaners to sweepers, parking attendants, garbage collectors and cooks should be included in training programmes.

It is five times more expensive to win a new customer than it is to keep a current customer. In the tourism industry there is no such thing as 'It's not my job'. Your job description is 'Keep the guests happy'. It does not matter if you are a booking agent, hotel receptionist, guide, cook or driver or whether you are in the front line or the back office, a guest is YOUR guest.

You don't need to go on expensive courses – just pay attention to the details. Many of our top companies in inbound tourism are already praised for their high standards of service, but anyone can provide the best – and when we do in South Africa, we are up there with the world's best.

Great service guarantees word-of-mouth recommendations (worth millions in free advertising) and return trips. Staff can shine as the people who go the extra mile and are committed to the happiness and comfort of your clients. Take every opportunity to add the 'Wow' factor to your interactions with guests. Great service is not one grand gesture; it is a series of small signs that let the guests know they are in great hands. Guests will give you their undying loyalty if you can exceed their expectations.

Is it not high time your company's motto be …

'We don't aim to satisfy our clients – we aim to dazzle them!*

([Adapted from: Tourism Tattler, Issue Three 2006])

2.1.1 From the extract above, identify TWO very important personal qualities employees in the tourism industry should have in order to deliver excellent service. (2)

2.1.2 Explain what is meant by the following: 'It is five times more expensive to win a new customer than it is to keep a current customer.' (3)

2.1.3 Explain why front-line staff deals more frequently with customer complaints than other staff members. (2)

2.1.4 Discuss how positive 'word-of-mouth' recommendations are worth millions to the development of South African communities and economic growth in South Africa. (6)
2.2 Read the passage and then refer to the diagram to answer the questions that follow.

Tourism is an important industry of the economy. Although tourism does not produce a definite product, it is integrated into other industries or sectors. When looking at the impact of tourism on the domestic economy as a whole, there are many sectors that impact directly or indirectly on the tourism industry.

Use the diagram above to identify the largest sector of the GDP that is associated with the following sectors, sub sectors and role players of the tourism industry:

- 2.2.1 Time-share accommodation (2)
- 2.2.2 Tourist guides (2)
- 2.2.3 Craft centres (2)
- 2.2.4 International marketing (2)

QUESTION 4

4.1 Read the following case study below and answer the questions that follow.

Restoring nature by breaking borders

The Maloti Drakensberg Transfrontier Project (MDTP) was established to explore ways in which South Africa and Lesotho can work together to conserve the Maloti and Drakensberg mountain ranges. The mountains have significant biodiversity with both countries being committed to eradicating (removing) alien vegetation. They also contain world-renowned rock art and other cultural heritage features which tell stories of the many people they have supported through the ages.

Of particular importance is looking for ways in which the mountains can continue to support the many people who live in and depend on them. One possibility is through nature and culture-based tourism.

The MDTP is working with a number of partnership groups who are establishing community-based tourism projects. Communities from the region are starting to get excited about what the region has to offer the traveller – craft centre, hiking, birding, fly fishing and a variety of extreme sports. Meeting the people of the region is an additional highlight and there are also many opportunities to learn about the people who have lived there through the ages.

[Adapted from: MDTP NEWS Quarterly Vol. 2 No.4, December 2006, Sunday Tribune, August 5, 2007]

4.1.1 Identify the TWO SADC countries involved in MDTP. (2)

4.1.2 Explain the subheading ‘Restoring nature by breaking borders’. (2)

4.1.3 Apart from creating jobs and job opportunities, state ONE positive economic factor of transfrontier parks. (2)

4.1.4 Explain how the local community is successfully involved in the following aspects of sustainable development:

(a) The environment (b) Social (c) Economic (6)
4.2 Respect for the local culture and support for social developments are essential for responsible tourism practice. However, uncontrolled development can destroy entire communities.

4.2.1 Discuss how uncontrolled development of the MDTP can have a negative social impact. (4)

4.2.2 List TWO steps that can be taken to prevent the social destruction of the area. (2)

4.3 It is suggested that through nature and culture-based tourism, it will be possible to sustain this project.

4.3.1 Explain how you think the MDTP plans to sustain the project through nature and culture-based tourism. (4)

4.3.2 Suggest THREE ways in which the craft centre can be improved so that it can be competitive with other businesses in the area. (3)

4.3.3 Identify TWO tourism attractions from the case study that have the potential to develop into unique tourism businesses. (2)

4.4 Give ONE example of good environmental practice from the case study. (1)

QUESTION 6

6.1 Read the case study and use the time zone map below to answer the questions.

A group of South African athletes are interested in participating in an Open Championship Athletics Meeting to be held in Dallas in July 2009. Dallas is practising Daylight Saving Time during this period. The South African athletes’ travelling plan is organised by Tshwane Travel Agency in South Africa. The athletes are interested in the following information:

- The number of time zones they are going to cross
- Whether South Africa is ahead or behind time compared to Dallas
- Whether they will suffer from jet lag when they arrive in Dallas
6.1.1 Calculate the number of time zones between Johannesburg and Dallas. (3)

6.1.2 State whether South Africa's time is ahead or behind Dallas. Give reasons for your answer. (2)

6.1.3 Tshwane Travel Agency wants to make a call to the organisers of the athletics meeting at 16:00.

   (a) Calculate the time the call will be received in Dallas keeping in mind that Daylight Saving Time is practised. (3)

   (b) Explain why the Tshwane Travel Agency will make the call at 16:00 South African time and not earlier. (2)

6.1.4 Give TWO benefits of Daylight Saving Time that are enjoyed in Dallas. (2)

6.1.5 Explain how jet lag will impact negatively on the South African athletes and what advice you will give them to overcome jet lag? (4)

6.2 Health, security and safety are important elements that determine the success or failure of the tourism industry at a global level. Countries that fail to guarantee the health, security and safety of its visitors always face different kinds of problems when it comes to tourism.

   Name TWO resources a tourist can use to obtain information about health, security and safety of a country. (2)

6.3 In preparation for the forthcoming 2010 FIFA Soccer World Cup, South Africa must start considering the safety and security of disabled sport lovers.
