The Minister of Basic Education, Mrs Angie Motshekga, MP, urges all concerned persons to answer the call to help secure learning and teaching during this period of disruption of schooling. The time for support is now!

The Department is busy setting up learning centres particularly for Grade 12 learners so that they can complete their curriculum and begin meaningful revision before their examinations begin on 25 October 2010. The Department calls on all those who are experts in the subjects offered for matric to offer their services to assist during this period and beyond. The Department will support the learning centres with materials.

The Minister is also calling on parents and communities to find ways of keeping younger learners engaged in active learning and enrichment programmes. Again volunteers, particularly retired and student teachers, parents and community members, and non-government organisations involved in education programmes who are able to offer their time and effort, are requested to answer the call to keep our children occupied in meaningful education activities.

Education is indeed a societal issue!
