FOREWORD

The Department of Basic Education (DBE) believes that there is an imperative need to establish a clear and agreed-upon understanding of what the South African education system expects of those who are, or aspire to be, entrusted with the leadership and management of schools. Our efforts have focused on the need to ensure positive/successful curriculum management outcomes at the school level as well as on the challenge of promoting and supporting the creation of an empowered and visible growth in the number of school managers and leaders in the education system.

We have developed the South African Standard for Principalship (SASP) that fully defines the role of school principals and key aspects of professionalism, image and competencies required and also serves as a guide to address professional leadership and developmental needs.

The SASP comprises 8 key interdependence areas which constitute the core purpose of the principal in any South African context, which are:

a)   Leading teaching and learning in the school;

b)   Shaping the direction and development of the school;

c)   Managing quality and securing accountability;

d)   Developing and empowering self and others;

e)   Managing the school as an organisation;

f)   Working with and for the community;

g)   Managing human resources (staff) in the school; and

h)   Managing and advocating extra-mural activities.

The South African Standard for Principalship illustrates my Department's concrete action on the challenges emanating from the Strategic Priorities informed by the Action Plan to 2019: Towards the Realisation of Schooling 2030. The SASP responds to the important demand for the provision of credible support to school principals as a key aspect towards improving effectiveness in the education system. It also prepares school principals to deal with changing processes and to improve the quality of education in the restructured education system.

I challenge all in the education sector - male and female - to utilise the SASP and play a role in enhancing the professional image and competencies of school principals.

Mrs AM Motshekga, MP

Minister of Basic Education

1. INTRODUCTION

The Department of Basic Education believes that it is imperative to establish a clear and agreed understanding of what the South African education system expects of those who are, or aspire to be, entrusted with the leadership and management of schools. Currently, no common and universally accepted understanding exists, although limited definitions are included in both the Personnel Administrative Measures and the appraisal system. Therefore, the DBE has developed the Policy on the South African Standard for Principalship ('the Standard'), which fully defines the role of school principals and the key aspects of professionalism, image and competencies required. This will also serve as a policy to address professional leadership and management development needs.

The DBE has developed and aims to implement a system of career pathing for education leaders and managers and to make available a framework of processes and programmes for developing leadership and management. These will be based upon an agreed understanding of the core purposes of a principal's leadership role, the key areas of such a role, the values which underpin them, and the personal and professional qualities required to fulfil the role. The key areas referred to in the Standard are in line with the core purpose and responsibilities of the principal as set out in Sections 16 and 16A of the South African Schools Act, (No. 84 of 1996, paragraph 4.2 of Chapter A of the Personnel Administrative Measures, and the relevant appraisal system.

The Standard provides a clear role description for school leaders and sets out what is required of the principal. Principals working with school management teams (SMTs), school governing bodies (SGBs), representative councils of learners (RCLs) and wider communities must effectively manage, support and promote the best quality teaching and learning, the purpose of which is to enable learners to attain the highest levels of achievement for their own good, the good of their community and the good of the country as a whole.

The DBE intends to build upon the quality of leadership and successful outcomes observed at well-functioning schools within the context of their communities and to address poor leadership and inadequate outcomes of schooling at other schools. It has explicitly stated its belief that effective leadership and management, supported by a well-conceived, needs-driven development of leadership and management, is critical to the achievement of its transformational goals for education.

The purpose of the transformation of any education system is to bring about sustainable school improvement and a profound change in the culture and practice of schools. In South Africa, this change is influenced by the many complex economic, political, social and health factors which affect widely differing communities in both urban and rural contexts. These factors, and particularly the widespread, devastating impact of HIV and Aids, make it vitally important for schools to provide for the overall well-being of their learning communities in a nurturing and supportive environment. The extent to which schools are able to provide such support and implement the necessary change and improvement will depend on the professionalism of their leaders and the quality of the leadership and management that those leaders provide.

The DBE, with the provincial education departments (PEDs), has identified differentiated developmental needs for professionalising principals and for the development of their role. There are the

a)   enhancement of the skills and competencies of principals

b)   improvement of the procedures for recruiting and selecting principals

c)   induction and mentoring of principals

d)   professional preparation of principals.

The Standard, in line with other policy initiatives, is designed to improve professional standards of leadership and management for the benefit of learners and the quality of the education service as a whole. Although the Standard focuses primarily on the role of the principal as the leading professional in the school, there is a strong emphasis on shared leadership. Thus, recognition is given to the expectation and requirement in South Africa that good principals do not act in isolation but lead and manage their schools professionally and in ways that are grounded in and embraced by the principles of Batho Pele and Ubuntu.

The key areas, which define the principal's leadership and management role in relation to the core purpose of principalship, are underpinned by the following educational and social values that the principal needs to uphold.

a) All learners have the right to have access to relevant and meaningful learning experiences and opportunities.

b) The school community has the right to active participation in the life of the school.

c) All members of the school community must be treated with respect and dignity and with recognition of their diverse natures.

d) The school community has the right to a safe and secure learning environment.

e) The well-being of all learners must be fostered within the school and the wider community.

Embedded in the principal's leadership and management of the school are core societal, educational and professional values which are reflected in the manner in which he or she deals with all matters pertaining to the curriculum and human resources. These values, which inform the core purpose of principalship and, together with knowledge and skills, shape the nature and direction of leadership and management in the school, include the following:

a) commitment to the core values and vision of the school and of schooling in South Africa

b) commitment to the pursuit of excellence in all aspects of school life and to the building of a safe,   secure and healthy learning environment

c) strategic, creative and insightful thinking and effective communication

d) commitment to the development, empowerment and support of everyone in the school's community

e) participative decision-making, teamwork and team-building

f) integrity and fairness in all dealings with people and in the management and deployment of financial and other resources

g) adherence to departmental SGB-developed policies in the management and deployment of financial and other resources

h) fair-mindedness, patience, empathy, compassion, respect and humility in all dealings with others and in the promotion and protection of the interests of educators and learners

i) adaptability and responsiveness to change and political astuteness in situations of ambiguity, adversity or opposition

j) professional and managerial decisions based on informed judgments and resulting in appropriate action

k) self-confidence, maturity and courage in decision-making and action demonstrating resourcefulness, initiative and determination in seeking solutions to problems

l) self-reflection and a commitment to ongoing personal and professional self-development.

3. SCOPE OF APPLICATION

The Standard applies to all principals at all South African schools and sets out key dimensions of the work to be undertaken by the principal of a school. It promotes core values underpinned by the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa and makes reference to skills and qualities that are necessary for executing the duties of a school principal.

In the South African context, schools face a wide variety of circumstances arising out of, amongst others, socio-economic, cultural, and language diversity. Acknowledging this wide diversity, the Standard provides information that will be useful to all stakeholders who have an interest in a particular school. The information provided by the Standard will assist in the recruitment, selection and appointment of principals and will help principals to improve management processes at their schools. Moreover, it will assist the DBE and the PEDs in designing training programmes that promote professional leadership and management development for principals who are currently in service, as well as for educators who aspire to become principals.

4. ELEMENTS OF THE POLICY ON THE SOUTH AFRICAN STANDARD FOR PRINCIPALSHIP

The Standard comprises the following four elements:

4.1 Understanding the core purpose:

The Policy is built upon the core purpose of principalship, which, together with the other three elements, underpins the principal's school leadership and management practices.

4.2 Subscribing to educational ethics and social values:

These are the core values that underpin everything that happens at a school and that inform everything that the principal does in leading and managing the school.

4.3 Processing skills and knowledge to the key areas of principalship:

There are eight interdependent key areas of skill and knowledge in which a person needs to be competent in order to successfully fulfil the role of principal and deal with addressing the demands of the South African schooling system. Within each of these eight key areas, the principal must have the required knowledge in order to efficiently and effectively carry out the activities relating to the core purpose of principalship.

4.4 Having the necessary personal and professional qualities

These are personal quality traits that influence the way in which a principal fulfils his or her leadership and management role.

The above four elements, taken together, provide answers to three fundamental questions relating to the professional work of any principal:

• WHY does a school principal take a particular course of action?

• WHAT are the main functions of principalship?

• HOW are the main functions fulfilled effectively?

5. THE CORE PURPOSE OF PRINCIPALSHIP

The following eight (8) interdependent key areas constitute the core purpose of the principal of any South African school. The principal needs knowledge to carry out the actions that are required in the eight key areas.

5.1 THE KEY AREAS OF PRINCIPALSHIP:

a)   Leading teaching and learning in the school – five main kinds of leadership

b)   Shaping the direction and development of the school

c)   Managing quality of teaching and learning and securing accountability

d)   Developing and empowering self and others

e)   Managing the school as an organisation

f)   Working with and for the community

g)   Managing human resources (staff) in the school

h)   Managing and advocating extramural activities.

Note: The Standard identifies some typical actions that principals need to take and provides some illustrative indication of related knowledge requirements. However, it would be possible, if required, for programme designers, and those making use of the Standard for other purposes, to expand and reconfigure variously the action and knowledge components into 'practical', 'foundational' and 'reflexive' competencies, in line with the Norms and Standards for Educators published under Government Notice No. 82 in the Government Gazette No. 20844 of 4 February 2000.

5.1.1 LEADING THE TEACHING AND LEARNING IN THE SCHOOL~ five main kinds of leadership

6. CONCLUSION

In concluding this Standard, it is pointed out that a number of competencies are required of the principal. Ethical leadership in all its various facets, and more particularly in leading diversity, is of paramount importance for an effective principal. Principals should be able to understand the organisations which they lead and offer effective and efficient management of that organisation.

Management aspects include curriculum support, human resource and administrative management, financial procedures, implementation of legislation and regulations, maintenance of infrastructure and safety and security in and around the school. The principal as a proficient communicator, corresponds with a wide variety of individuals and groups who make up the school community. Furthermore, the principal should be capable of making quick and accurate judgements, enabling prompt handling of challenges and problems as they arise.

The Education Department has an equally vital role to play in ensuring that the core functions and key areas set for principals are realistic, and within the grasp of the individuals concerned. The Department should provide the necessary training and guidelines, not only in the professional duties of principals, but also in their personal development. Practical skills which the Department should inculcate in the principal, include training in those aspects of the law necessary for effective running of the institution, financial management, how to evaluate his or her school, and how to use this evaluation in school development planning and school improvement; and how to manage a complex curriculum.
