2. BACKGROUND STATEMENT

The current schooling curriculum is predominantly focused on academic/theoretical learning. It does not cater adequately for vocational, technical and occupationally-oriented learning. Consequently, learners are faced with limited learning choices in the schooling system. Moreover, the curriculum does not cater sufficiently for technological advancements, emerging industries, and new occupations, fuelled by the fourth industrial revolution.

The current academic/theoretical learning has led learners to believe that schooling success means gaining university entry to the exclusion of other post-school learning opportunities that are available, especially in the technical, vocational and occupational fields. This misconception has contributed to the high Not In Education, Employment and Training (NEET) rate in the youth population. South Africa is now facing an unemployment crisis of epic proportions.

Within this context the National Development Plan, 2030 (NDP) recognizes the need for various parts of the education system to work together and to allow learners to take different pathways that offer high-quality learning opportunities. In addition, the NDP also emphasises the need for clear linkages between schools, TVET and CET colleges, universities of technology, universities, and other higher education providers, and skills development providers, as well as the clear linkages between education and training and the world of work to address the skills needs of the economy. In this regard, the Department of Basic Education in collaboration with the National Education Collaboration Trust (NECT) have established the Three Streams Model Human Resource Mobilisation Working Group to facilitate the development of an integrated human resource strategy. The appointed service provider will work and report to the Three Streams Model Human Resource Mobilisation Working Group.
